THIS SEASON AT HIS WELL KNOWN

LATEST FOREIGN NEWS!

From our extra of Saturday last we reprint and enlarge the following synopsis of the foreign news:

By the arrival of the clipper ship Flying Eagle, 13 days from San Francisco, we have received California dates to the 27th, St. Louis to Aug 4, N. Y. to Aug. 3, Liverpool July 23.

The bark Yankee, Lovett, hence, arrived at San Francisco Aug 24, making the passage in 23 days. The Atlantic Mail via the Isthmus was hourly expected to arrive at San Francisco, and the Island mail would be dispatched per ship Ocean Express.

We are under obligations to Messrs. McRuer and Merrill for late papers.

The European news still possesses a high interest. We quote the principal:

The Emperor arrived at St. Cloud on Sunday mornng, the 17th instant. The Empress, with the Imperial Prince and the ladies and officers of the household, were in waiting to receive him. For more than an hour at the Railway station the little Prince wore his corporal's uniform, and had a laurel crown in his hand ready to give his father on his arrival. As soon as the Emperor arrived he kissed the Empress, took the Imperial Prince in his arms and held him for some minutes. He afterwards gave his arm to the Empress, and proceeded in a carriage to the chateau. At noon the Emperor attended mass, and immediately after received his ministers.

The Paris Moniteur of the 20th contains the following defence of the peace treaty by Napoleon : Yesterday evening the Emperor received the great bodies of the State, the President of which, M. Tropling, Count de Morney and M. Borocher, addressed congratulatory speeches to his Majesty. The Emperor thanked them for their devotion, and then explained the reasons for his conduct during the great events. He said, " Arrived beneath the walls of Verona, the struggle was inevitably about to change in its nature, as well as in a military and political aspect-obliged to attack the enemy in front, who was intrenched behind great fortresses, and protected on his flank by the neutrality of the surrounding territory, and about to begin a long and barren war, I found myself in the face of Europe in arms ready to dispute our successes or aggravate our reverses. Nevertheless, the difficulty of the enterprise would not have shaken my resolution, if the means had not been out of proportion to the results to be expected. It was necessary to crush bodily the obstacles proposed, then to accept a conflict on the Rhine as well as on the Adige. It was necessary to fortify ourselves openly with the concurrence of It was no cious blood, and at last risk that which a sovereign should only stake for the independence of his country. If I have stopped it was neither through weariness or exhaustion, nor through abandoning the noble cause which I desire to serve, but the interests of France. I felt great reluctance to put reins upon the ardor of the soldiers, to retrench from my programme the territory from the Mincio to the Adriatic, and to see vanish from honest hearts, noble aspirations and patriotic In order to serve the independence of Italy I made war against the mind of Europe, and as soon as the destiny of my country might be endangered, I made peace. Our efforts and our sacrifices have they been merely losses? No, we have a right to be proud of this campaign. We have vanquished an army, numerous, brave and well organized. Piedmont has been delivered from invasion, and her frontiers have been extended to the Mincio. The idea of an Italian nationality has been admitted by those who combated it most, and all the sovereigns of the Peninsula comprehend the wants of salutary reforms. Thus after having given a new proof of the military power of Frane, the peace concluded will be prolific of happy results, and the future will every day reveal additional cause for the happiness of Italy, the influence of France, and the tranquility of Europe.

Italy.

Prince Napoleon was at Genoa on the 17th. A new ministry had been formed at Turin, with General de la Marmora as Minister of War and President of the Council. The Times' Milan correspondence says: "It was said that the menaces of Prussia have much wounded the Emperor just now. He certainly is not going to yield to remonstrances, or threats or pleas, still if rumor says truly, he is not prepared on the Rhine sufficiently to defend Paris, and treat the Prussians as he has treated the Austrians. All this is rumor, but what is certain is the growing coldness between himself and Count Cavour. If he does not keep a sharp lookout, that wily statesman will realize the uncomfortable consequence of being between two stools. Authorized, or unauthorized, he certainly did accept propositions at Plombiers, which he is unable to fulfill, and consequently the Emperor is with reason annoyed. On the other hand Ratazzi, now Minister of the Interior at Turin, charges him with betraying the interests of the nation, with deceiving the people with the idea of national unity, and giving his consent to the Emperor's propo-Strong indications of discontent at the terms or the peace were visible in some parts of Italy. At Florence great agitation prevailed, and the Provisional Government had issued a proclamation which describes the peace of Villa Franca as betraying the fairest hopes. It says that the Tuscan Government participated in the sentiments of the Tuscan people on the subject, and declares that Tuscany will not be replaced under the yoke and influence of Austria against her

000 men will remain in Italy until the reorganization of the country according to the tenor of the peace of Villafranca. to appear in Congress, now is the time, when her and stupor in consequence of the peace, which leaves Sardinia without a fortified frontier. The Opinion, of Turin, does not conceal the satisfaction with which it sees Venice remain in the hands of Austria. It attributes Count Cavour's resignation to the insufficiency of the terms of peace.

The government of Lombardy has cautioned editors against using invectives in regard to recent events, and under pain of suppression or suspension. It is reported that Sardinia has recalled its representatives from Tuscany and Modena, and that the interferance in the Peace Congress. Lord Palmerston Provisional Governments of Tuscany and Modena are organizing a force to oppose the return of the duke. With propriety take part, but no course was deter-Chevalier Peatgi had been sent from Florence on a mined on. Lord Elcho gave notice of the introduction special mission.

The Times' correspondent says that the news of peace produced the greatest exasperation and defection at Turin. The Emperor was accused of being a traitor to Italy, and his portraits had to be withdrawn from the shop windows to prevent them from being broken. The opinion of Turm manifests dissatisfaction at Venice being allowed to remain in the hands of Austria. Four thousand Swiss troops left the Neapolitan service and went home. The disbandment of many more is expected. Large bodies of troops were concentrating at Naples.

A Paris letter says that "Kossuth and Klapka, according to private letters from Turin, have both been detained at that place under the strictest surveillance and Austria, it would not be wise to suffer the two SUGAR and Moinsses of the crop of 1859, from the Brewer Plantation, now coming in.

from Italy." Accounts from Naples state that the volcano of Vesuvius was in an active state of eruption. A river of lava, flaming from the crater, was already three miles long, and was destroying orchards and vineyards.

The Peace in Europe. The Paris correspondent of the Manchester Guardian represents the armistice to be very unpopular in Paris, and of course the peace is also. The writer adds: Louis Napoleon himself could not have been altogether unaware of the feeling that would be exhibited by the sudden news of an armistice asked for by him, for the dispatch received on Thursday evening by the Princess Mathilde, contained these words: "They must not know it in Paris, but this is peace." There is hardly a Paris paper that does not force the Government to feel what a singularly awkward position it is placed in. As for Germany, the proposition made by Austria to the Frankfort Diet to appoint the Prince Regent of Prussia Commander-in-Chief of the armies of the Confederation, caused great indignation at Berlin. Prussia wants to see the Federal contingents united to her army, but the Austrian proposition was to lasso the Regent of Prussia and drag him down from his independent position as head and director of a European State of the first order, to that of the Germanic Confederation, in which Austria has a majority of votes. The worst kind of feeling is reported to exist between Prossia and Austria.

The Vienna correspondent of the London Times says that the representatives of Austria, France and Sardinia will soon meet at Zurich to conclude the treaty of peace. There will be no Congress, as the two Emperors have agreed to settle their differences without the intervention of the neutral powers. The London Post's Paris correspondent telegraphed on the 18th inst, as follows:

bases for peace which they so hastily agreed upon, are in many respects impracticable. Le Nord says, the preliminary treaty of peace, although arranged in principal at Villafranca, will be definitely frawn up at Zurich, and will then be officially communicated to the Courts of Europe, the adhesion of these Courts being indispensable to the organic and international stipulations which form part of the public law of Europe.

The proposals for mediation made by Prussia, were far more favorable than the preliminaries of peace which have now been agreed upon. The Alta California says: If we are to believe the reports as they come to us, there is really a more dangerous consummation at present agitating these States, than was the case prior to. or during the recent war. The Pope is fretting and chafing like a chained lion, and indulging in all sorts of threats against the powers which presume to dictate a line of policy for him to pursue, and even the two Emperors themselves are said to be convinced now that the terms of the treaty are impracticable. If both parties to the treaty are convinced of this latter fact, what is to be done? Either the treaty must be remod dled, or they must again assemble their hosts and fight it out. Per parenthesis, we make the prediction just here, that Napoleon does not again put his Imperial position in peril by engaging to free a neighboring people. He is likely to have his hands full nearer home. Parma and Modena are said to be in a state of revolt. while deputations from the Roman States have been sent to the Tyrol to confer with Garibaldi, who, at the head of his forces, still rests on his arms, awaiting to pursue a course which no one seems wise enough to Even Victor Emanuel finds no bed of roses upon which to lay his weary limbs, for at Turin, it is represented that the greatest defection exists, and the Emperor's portraits had to be withdrawn from the shopwindows to prevent them from being broken. This is the new modern definition of the word peace. In the House of Commons on Thursday, Mr. Bright inveighed against the attacks upon the French Emperor and consequently the French nation, which tended to plunge this country into war. If he was in the position of Lord John Russell, he would try to emancipate himself from the old bloody traditions of the foreign office. He would approach France in a sensible, moral and Christian spirit, and test the sincerity of the Government by proposing an alteration in the tariffs of the two countries in the interest of free trade, He believed that if this offer was honestly made, and not with diplomatic finesse, it would bring about a different state of things.

Lord John Russell said he had seen with pain attempts made to awaken the feelings of this country against the sovereign and people of France, which could only produce on their part a feeling of animosity against the people of this country. He believed that the Emperor of the French had been a faithful ally of this country. What then was this making continually According to the Nord, a French corps d'arme of 40,invectives against him? He believed, as far as he was concerned, that the Emperor has been anxious to get rid of protecting duties as injurious to France, but it would not be prudent to give a handle to the protectionist party in that country to charge him with sacrificing the interests of France to those of England.
